

New product in the Droog collection

Glass lantern by Richard Hutten

---

In the project The New Original (2013) Droog investigated the copy culture in Shenzhen, China. Droog wanted to advocate copying as a source of creativity. One of the participants in this project was Dutch designer Richard Hutten. He copied the traditional Chinese lantern but he used glass instead of paper and he modernized the design by reshaping the lantern. The lantern is available now!

Richard Hutten has worked with Droog during the 25 years of the existence of the company. His work was included in the first exhibition in 1993 and over the years he developed several projects and products together with Droog.

Richard Hutten

Richard Hutten started his own design studio in 1991, working on a variety of projects such as: furniture-, product-, interior- and exhibition design. He is one of the most internationally successful Dutch designers. His work is part of the permanent collections of, among others, Centraal Museum Utrecht, Stedelijk Museum of Modern Art Amsterdam, Vitra Museum Weil am Rhein and San Francisco Museum of Modern Art. A book about his work 'No sign of design' was written by Ed van Hinte.

Droog Design

Droog has been pioneering new directions for design since the early nineties, redefining international notions of luxury in design. Driven by its unique perspective, Droog offers a selection of accessories, lighting, furniture and studio work that change your experience of daily life. Beauty and experience with minimal means, always with a twist and respect for the existing. Not so much less is more, as less and more.

VANMOKUM

From their studio in Amsterdam VANMOKUM designs, develops and admires beautiful and unique products. VANMOKUM's own brands are LEFF amsterdam, Droog, Frama, Karven, Graypants and Soundskins. Every brand represents a different style and has their own story. Besides producing their own labels, they're also distributor for several other design brands. This means their team covers inside and outside sales, PR and the full distribution. They sell to high-end design and interior stores, museum stores, department stores and several project customers like hotels, clubs and restaurants.
